S: When you see her in the evening in a bright green dress
 S: Walking fast down the hallway you might never guess
 S: That the lady has a weakness she's reluctant to confess.
 N: No, you might not notice when I'm dancing reels
 N: That I made it through the airport on a set of wheels,
 N: And I'm still not certain that I like the way that it feels. C7 – E7

 N: We were wheelin' our way through the airport crowd;
 SN: And the way it made her feel made her want to weep out loud.
 N: 'Cause we were cuttin' past the line at the TSA
 N: Asking healthy young people to get out of our way
 S: Savin' her strength to make it through another day. C G7

S: When she has a good day she can walk a mile
 S: Dance through the evening with grace and style
 S: Greet her lover at the door with a tight embrace and a smile;
 S: Next minute she's collapsing like she's half-way dead
 S: With a fire in her body and an aching head
 S: And she'll pay with pain and the rest of the weekend in bed. C C7 – E7

N: So with my lover right beside me lookin' calm and cool
 N: I walk up to the counter feeling like a fool
 N: And try to tell myself that a wheelchair's only a tool.
 N: Soon I'm wheelin' past the line at the TSA
 N: Feeling weird watching people getting out of my way
 N: But it's the easiest journey in years to the end of the day. C G7

S: Well, her body is a battleground and life's a war,
 S: And she's lost against her limits many times before;
 S: But she's still fightin' with a few new tricks in store;
 N: Because a wheelchair is a weapon, not a mark of defeat
 N: And she can stay standing longer with some time off her feet
 N: The battle isn't over, and winning will be sweet.

SN: With her lover right behind her lookin' fierce and proud
 SN: They'll be cutting a swath through the airport crowd
 SN: The way it makes her feel will make her want to laugh out loud.
 SN: 'Cause she'll be wheelin' past the line at the TSA
 SN: Watchin' tough young punks scurry out of her way
 SN: Savin' her strength to make it through another day.
 N: Yeah, savin' my strength—to fight another day.
