

©2008 Naomi Rivkis

starting notes C, E (top two strings)

Naomi sings lead; Steve sings harmony on choruses.

^C Along the road to the market town the travelers come and go
^C They ask me about the people there, as if they're sure I'll know.
^{Dm} "Are they kind? Are they generous? ^F crafty or cruel?
^C Oh, stranger, I pray, tell me what I will find."
^F And I sit by the road, and I smile at the fool
^F And ask, "What are the folk like where you left behind?"

^F You must understand that the heart is a mirror
^{Dm} Reflecting the hearts of the mirrors it knows
^F And the people you see in your own expectations
^F Will always be with you wherever you go.

^C One came by only yesterday to ask me about the town
^C His eyes were hard, his face was grey, his mouth it wore a frown.
^{Dm} He ranted at length of the people he knew:
^C They were sullen and crooked and always to blame
^F So I stepped to the side, and I bowed his way through
^F And said, "I think here you will find them the same."

^F You must understand that the heart is a mirror
^{Dm} Reflecting the hearts of the mirrors it knows
^F And the people you see in your own expectations
^F Will always be with you wherever you go.

^C Later there came a girl whose smile sparkled with joy and fun. ^G
^C She shared her water and bread with me, as we sat in the fading sun ^G
 She told me of sisters and brothers and friends ^{Dm} ^F
^C She'd loved almost everyone ever she knew. ^F
^F ^C ^F ^C Said, "I'm eager to meet the good folk of this place!"
^F ^C ^F ^G ^G I told her, "You'll find them as friendly as you."

^F ^C You must understand that the heart is a mirror
^{Dm} ^C ^G Reflecting the hearts of the mirrors it knows
^F ^C ^F ^C And the people you see in your own expectations
^F ^C ^F ^G ^C Will always be with you wherever you go
^{Am} ^G ^C They're all your own mirror can show.